There was a class of students who often broke rules. None of the teachers wanted to teach them. So the principal(校长) called a new teacher at a different school. He asked her if she would like to come and teach at the school for one term. She agreed.

The principal decided not to tell the teacher about the class. He was afraid that she would be scared off. A month later, the principal sat in on the class to see how things were going. To his surprise, the students were well-behaved(表现良好的). After the class, the principal praised the teacher for her work. She thanked him for giving her such a well-behaved class to teach. But the principal said he really didn't deserve(值得) any thanks.

She laughed and told him, "You see, I discovered your secret on my first day here. I looked in the desk drawer and found a list of the students' IQ(智商) scores. I knew that I had a challenging group of kids here — they're so smart that I would have to work really hard to make school interesting for them."

She opened the drawer and the principal saw a list with the students' names and the numbers 136, 145, 127, 128, and so on written next to the names.

The principal laughed. Those weren't their IQ scores, but their locker(储物柜) numbers!

58. To deal with the class, the principal _____.

- A. asked some students to leave the school
- B. gave an IQ test to all the students
- C. called a teacher at a different school
- D. gave the teacher who taught the class a higher pay

59. How did the students behave in the new teacher's class?

- A. They didn't follow the rules.
- B. They behaved very well.
- C. They didn't like the teacher.
- D. They did better on their tests.

60. How did the teacher deal with these students?

- A. She told them they are clever.
- B. She made a plan before the class.
- C. She worked hard to make her class interesting.
- D. She tested the students' IQs before starting the class.

One should be moderate in all things. Moderation is always the safest way to do things, and a virtue we should have. Let's take the student life for example. There are some students who study too hard and play too little, while there are others who play too much and study too little. On the one hand, it is harmful to his health if he has too few physical exercises, and on the other hand, it is harmful to his mind if he plays too much.

In the matter of eating, one also should be moderate. Do not eat too much or too little. Eating too much will make you sick, while eating too little will make you weak.

The man of progress is he who neither has too high opinion of himself nor thinks too poorly of himself. If he thinks too highly of himself, he is surely to become very proud, but if he has too poor an opinion of himself, he will have no courage to make an advance. Both conditions above will make you lose your aim in life. A broadminded man is he who always moves within the orbit of reasonableness. In any activities in one's life, moderation is one of the best ways to enjoy real happiness.

61. "Someone is moderate" means
- A. he walks neither too fast nor too slowly
 - B. he shows good sense and never goes to extremes
 - C. he is not only safe but also successful
 - D. he is either tall or short
62. In the passage the writer suggests that a student should _____ .
- A. only study hard without anytime to play
 - B. spend most of his time playing different games
 - C. have much more time to study than to play
 - D. correctly arrange his time for study and play
63. According to the writer, one should eat _____ .
- A. neither too much nor too little
 - B. food rich in fat
 - C. a little amount of food so as not to be fat
 - D. as much food as one can if the food is tasty
64. If one wants to be broadminded, he must _____ .
- A. be full of courage
 - B. enjoy real happiness
 - C. do everything reasonably
 - D. believe in himself

九、阅读短文，根据短文内容回答问题。（前三道小题每小题 2 分,第四题 4 分）

When I was at school, our teacher told the class, "You are what you eat." Actually he was trying to show us the importance of eating the right food to stay healthy. And there are clear proofs that you become what you eat.

Japanese people are thought to be the healthiest in the world because of the food they eat. Most of them eat rice and fish and vegetables every day. They drink green tea or water when they're thirsty, and snack dried fish, fruit or ginkgo nuts. This tradition diet helps them live a longer and healthier life.

Food has great effect on our physical and emotional health. Have you ever heard any of the following advice?

- To stop feeling sleepy, you should eat dried fish.
- To keep your teeth clean, you should eat apples often.
- Garlic helps you not to catch cold.

But some advice may be contradictory to each other. While some people say "eating chocolate make you fat and gives you spots", some others say "chocolate contains the essential minerals like iron and magnesium (镁)." In this case, what you need to do is to figure out(弄清楚) what type of chocolate and how much of it to eat.

Some restaurants have already had the nutritional content and the benefits of their dishes and drinks in their menus. Let's take the restaurant "Winners" as an example. Its dishes are specifically designed to help people win sports competitions. There is a typical Night-before-the-game dish, a vegetable lasagna(宽面条)with rich tomato sauce full of vitamin and soft, easy-to-digest vegetables, which is lopped with a little fresh cheese---just enough to help you get a good night's sleep. Or you can choose the Go-faster salad, which is a large bowl of mixed raw vegetables in a light salad dressing. The vegetables are carefully chosen to include plenty of natural vitamins and minerals(矿物质). It gives you energy without making you gain weight.

The concept(理念) of eating food only because it's tasty is going out of fashion. And food producers are changing. Cola companies are making sugar-free and caffeine-free drinks. Food companies are making cookies with dried fruit because it is healthier. So, in the future you might be able to eat your way to your idea of perfection.

65. Why are Japanese people thought to be the healthiest in the world?

66. According to the passage, what should you eat if you feel sleepy?

67. What have some restaurants already had in their menus?

68. If you want to keep healthy, what would you like to eat? Why?
