Eddie tried harder and he reached Riley. Then suddenly he was in the lead. He was going to win!

Eddie could see the finish line at the top of the next hill. Some people were watching the race, they began to cheer and Eddie heard his father's voice supporting him.

Moments later, Eddie heard a cry. He looked around and saw Riley lying on the road with his bike on top of him. Any minute now, the other riders would rush toward him over the hill.

There are many aspects(方面) to language learning, such as how to say words, which words to choose, and what form of words to use. All of these aspects together can make learning a foreign language very difficult. But there are some points that might make it easier and more fun.

First, don't worry too much about pronouncing words the wrong way. Pronunciation is important, of course. It helps the listener to understand what is said more clearly. However, the most important step in learning a new language is to practice speaking it. Like learning any new skill, practice makes perfect. And when you practice speaking the new language, the native speaker(说本族语的人) usually thinks highly of your hard work and is ready to help improve your pronunciation.

Second, don't be afraid to guess the meaning of what someone says. There will be a lot of words to learn while studying a foreign language. In fact, there are tens of thousands of different words in English. And a word may have more than one meaning. The same goes with any other language. It is impossible to know all the words and all the meanings. Use clues(提示) to guess the meaning of what others say. When meeting a person that says "Hola" and waves his or her hand, one might guess that the person is giving a greeting. It is not important at that moment to know the exact meaning. With more practice of guessing the meaning of new words, your vocabulary will increase.

Third, don't lose hope. Learning a new language always takes time. Many will give up learning because learning all of the rules of another language is too hard or boring. Some may think that other people will make fun of them for making mistakes. But it's OK to make mistakes. Nobody is perfect, after all. Don't give up and keep trying.

In the end, learning a new language can be difficult, but remember that it can have great benefits(益处). Learning a new language doesn't just mean the ability to speak in that different language. It can also include making new friends, experiencing new adventures in a different culture, and tasting new food!

33. What can we learn from the passage?

- A. English has more words than any other language.
- B. Native speakers think highly of perfect pronunciation.
- C. Guessing the meaning of new words is an important skill.
- D. Learning grammar rules is easier than learning pronunciation.

34. The writer suggests a foreign language learner should _____.

- A. go to a foreign country to learn it
- B. feel relaxed about making mistakes
- C. remember as many words as possible
- D. find interesting ways to learn the rules

35. What is the passage mainly about?

- A. Advice for learning a foreign language.
- B. Reasons for learning a foreign language.
- C. Difficulties in learning a foreign language.
- D. Advantages of learning a foreign language.

D

Jorge and Maria Ramirez and their six-year-old son are smiling and laughing as they watch the baby giant panda. They are at a zoo as part of a large crowd watching the baby panda learning to walk. Why are people so attracted by the baby giant panda? Cuteness is the answer.

Experts say the things we describe as "cute" share several qualities(品质). What make something cute is different from what makes something beautiful. People often describe pandas as cute, but they don't usually say they are beautiful. A butterfly, on the other hand, may be beautiful but not cute. While we tend(倾向于) to admire(欣赏) beautiful things, we do not tend to have the fondness(喜爱) for them that cute things inspire(激发) in us.

Scientists have discovered some key facial features(特征) and behaviors that cute things have in common. Two important features are a round face and bright eyes. The position of the eyes is also important: the eyes should at least appear to face forward and not be high on the face. There are also certain behaviors that cute things have in common, such as walking and moving arms, legs and wings unsteadily(摇摆). Other important qualities of cuteness include youth, innocence(天真) and neediness(贫穷), as well as being vulnerable(脆弱的) to possible harm or danger.

The baby panda, with its round face, big black eyes and unsteady movements, has all the key features which add up to being cute. Another popular creature that shares many of these cute qualities is the baby emperor penguin. And many of people's pets can be described as cute.

Scientists believe there is an important reason why we are attracted to all these cute qualities. It is because human babies have all these qualities. They have round faces, bright eyes and unsteady movements. Human babies cannot get by without help from adults. Scientists point out that the cuteness of babies makes adults want to take care of them. This allows babies to survive, become adults and have their own babies. This cycle ensures the human species continues.

Advertisers use the special attraction of cute things in their attempts(企图, 尝试) to get us to buy their products. In Japan, for example, one of the most popular images is Hello Kitty. Many cartoon animal characters have round faces and large, bright eyes that face forward. In the real world, ducks and mice do not have round faces, and their small eyes are on the side of their heads.

The Ramirez family is not aware(意识到的) of all of this. For now, they are too busy taking pictures and admiring the baby panda.

36. Why does the writer talk about the Ramirez family in the first paragraph?
- A. To give an example of cuteness.
  - B. To bring readers close to the topic.
  - C. To give readers some idea of admiration.
  - D. To make people interested in baby pandas.
37. From the passage, we can learn that being cute _____.
- A. changes people's facial features
  - B. inspires people to give their help
  - C. inspires people in dangerous situations
  - D. shares the same qualities with being beautiful
38. The underlined word "survive" in Paragraph 5 probably means "_____".
- A. stop to cry
  - B. continue to cry
  - C. stop to live
  - D. continue to live
39. Which is the best title of the passage?
- A. Being Cute to Survive
  - B. Cute and Beautiful
  - C. Features of Cute Animals
  - D. Making Babies Cute
