五、文段表达

I'll be quite different from what I am today in the future. In 10 or 20 years, I'll be working as an engineer for a high-tech company, leading a simple but healthy lifestyle, and being fully involved in volunteer work.

In order to realize my dream, I'm going to work towards my short-term and long-term goals step by step. For one thing, I'm going to give full attention to my studies from now on so that I can get into a good university and get my dream job. Meanwhile, I'm going to develop healthy living habits that will allow me to enjoy good health and do my part to protect the environment. I'll also make it a habit to do volunteer work for people in need and help to make the world a better place.

All in all, in 10 or 20 years, I'll be following my dream path and realizing my self-worth.

Sample 2

Listening is more than using our ears. Being a good listener requires patience, respect and an encouraging attitude.

When I listen to others, I always listen patiently to every word the speaker has to say, and I try my best to make sure I understand the speaker. What's more, I believe it's impolite to interrupt others, so I always let others finish first. If I need to say something, I say it with a smile. In addition, I keep eye contact with the speaker to show my respect, nodding from time to time to let the speaker know I like what he/she says.

Being a good listener is of great importance. On the one hand, listening is the key to effective communication. On the other hand, good listening ensures good relationships with others.
