I am Lucas, from Perth, Australia. Last Sunday, our class took train to Chinatown. It was cool and warm, just right for a 1. We began to learn Chinese this term and our teacher said this trip would let us practise our language skills and learn more about Chinese culture.

We walked into Chinatown through the arched gate with red painted wooden pillars. Big stone lions sat on each 2 of the gate. Then I noticed that the street signs were written in both Chinese and English. I 3 the sign of Hay Street and sent the picture to my mom.

The next place we visited was the Chinese Garden of Friendship which was very peaceful.

There were waterfalls, hidden stone paths and a beautiful tea house. It was really 4 to have some tea with flowers after a long walk. We all had a wonderful time.

At last it was time to 5 Chinese food. We entered a big restaurant that had red lanterns hanging from the roof and red dragons on the walls. The waiters 6 us in Chinese and we answered them in it, too. There we learned how to use chopsticks and how to choose from the menus with Chinese writing. There were many great specials. They were really delicious. At 2:30 we left Chinatown. We were all very 7 but excited.

In the past, I often 8 my Chinese classmates learn English. But now, they help me with Chinese more. Nowadays there are more people than ever who are studying Chinese. I can understand why it's an amazing language, and I will try to learn more Chinese! I cannot forget our trip to Chinatown.

Getting Information and Directions

One day, Bill had to go to New York. It was his first time there, and he didn't know his way around the city. It was 9:30 now, but he had a meeting at 10 o'clock, and he wanted to be there on time. The meeting was in the Peters Building on 34th Street, but Bill didn't know the way. At that time Bill met two men and he asked them for directions.

"Excuse me!" he said, "Can you tell me how to get to the Peters Building on 34th Street?"

"Sure," answered one of the men. "You can get there in five minutes. Go to the next crossing and turn left. Walk three blocks and there you are."

But the other man said, "Don't listen to him. There's a better way. Get on the bus here at this corner. It stops right near the Peters Building."

Then the first man said, "Oh, that's on East 34th Street, not West 34th. It's quite far away from here. Listen to me, you must take the subway."

But the second man told Bill, "No, don't go by subway. Take the crosstown bus. It will be faster."

Bill looked at his watch. It is almost ten o'clock! "Thanks a lot," he said, "I think I should take a taxi."

He got into the taxi and left. But the two men were still arguing and pointing in different directions.

In the taxi, Bill thought, next time if he needed to ask for directions, he should ask a policeman.

12. Who wanted to go to the Peters Building?
 A. The first man. B. The second man.
 C. Bill. D. A policeman.
13. According to the first man, how could Bill get to the meeting?
 A. By subway. B. By crosstown bus.
 C. By taxi. D. By bike.
14. Why did Bill think he should ask a policeman next time?
 A. Because there was nobody else.
 B. Because he didn't know any other man.
 C. Because he thought others must be wrong.
 D. Because the policeman should know the right way.

The Best Advice I Ever Had

When I was about 12 I had an "enemy", a girl who liked to point out my shortcomings. Week by week her list grew: I was too thin, I wasn't a good student, I was a tomboy(假小子), I talked too loud, I was stuck-up(自大的), and so on. I put up with her as long as I could. At last, I ran to my father in tears and anger.

He listened to my outburst quietly. Then he asked, "Are the things she says true or not?"

True? I wanted to know how to fight back. What did truth have to do with it?

"Mary, didn't you ever want to know what you're really like? Well, you now have that girl's opinion. Go and make a list of everything she said and check the points that are true. Pay no attention to the other things she said."

I did as he said and found to my surprise that about half the things were true. Some of them I couldn't change like being "too thin", but a good number I could and suddenly wanted to change. For the first time in my life I got a pretty clear picture of myself.

I brought the list back to Daddy. He refused(拒绝) to take it. "That is just for you," he said. "You know better than anybody else the truth about yourself once you hear it. But you've got to learn to listen; not close your ears in anger or hurt. Listen to them all, but hear the truth and do what you know is the right thing to do."

I accepted my daddy's words. I changed a lot then there was no enemy any more. We became friends.

Daddy's advice returned to me at many important moments. Thanks to my father, I was able to hear my own truth.

15. When Mary was around 12, her enemy, a girl, always _____.

D. to fight with the girl who said bad things about her

D

Eating food is enjoyable, but cooking can be challenging(有挑战性的). For those who don't have basic cooking skills, or are too busy working or traveling, one thing can save them—instant noodles.

This year is the 63rd birthday of the invention of instant noodles. Ever since they were created by Japanese businessman Momofuku Ando in 1958, instant noodles have been popular around the world. In China, the product has almost become a must for those who travel by train.

There are some fun facts about instant noodles: The total length of the noodles in one package(包装) is 51 meters. The first instant noodles were considered an expensive product. When they first came to Japanese supermarket in 1958 they were 6 times the cost of fresh noodles. Japanese people even voted(投票) instant noodles as one of their best inventions of the 20th century.

For instant noodles, as well as many "instant" foods, convenience is the key selling point. They can help to make our lives easier.

_____ . For example, in wars, soldiers eat compressed biscuits and canned meat because they don't need to cook these foods. And in the 1960s, frozen dinners of fried chicken, mashed potatoes and mixed vegetables became popular in the US. This is because more women started working and had no time to cook.

In recent years, however, online meal-ordering services have brought challenge to instant foods. Uber Eats is a popular app of this kind in the United States. In China, we have Ele.me, Dianping and Meituan. These services offer not only convenience but also more choices and tastier food. According to the World Instant Noodle Association, instant noodle sales reduced (减少) by 17 percent in China as of 2016.

This might show that Chinese people are now more interested in having higher-quality (更高质量的) diets and not just simply filling their mouths, experts say.

18. Which of the following is NOT the fun fact of instant noodles?

A. The usage of online-ordering services reduces the sales of instant noodles.

B. The first instant noodles were much more expensive than fresh noodles.

C. Japanese people voted instant noodles as one of their best inventions.

D. The total length of the noodles in one package is 51 meters.

19. Which sentence can be put in the beginning of the fifth paragraph?

A. The changes in food often tell changes in life

B. The development of instant food changes the world

C. Different countries have different kinds of instant food

D. More and more people were interested in instant noodles

20. What can we infer from the passage?

A. Everyone who travels by train takes interest in instant noodles in China.

B. Chinese people cared less about the quality of their diets in the past.

C. In 2016, only 17% of Chinese people bought instant noodles.

D. Many American women didn't like cooking food in the 1960s.

21. What is the passage mainly about?

A. How to make instant noodles.

B. Why instant noodles sales reduced.

C. Some fun facts about instant noodles.

D. The history and changes about instant noodles.

第二部分(共7题,共26分)

根据题目要求,完成相应任务。

三、阅读表达(每题2分,共10分)

Once upon a time, an old man lived with his three sons in a village.

The three sons were hard workers. Still, they quarrelled(争吵) all the time. The old man tried a lot to make them get well with each other but he failed. Though the villagers respected(尊重) their hard work and efforts, they made fun of them on their fights.

Months passed by and the old man fell sick. He told his sons not to quarrel but they didn't listen to him. He then decided to teach them an important lesson so that they would forget their differences and stay together.

The old man called his sons. He told them "I will give you a bundle of sticks. You have to break each stick into two. The one who breaks all the sticks in the shortest time will get more rewards(奖励)." The three sons agreed. The old man gave a bundle of ten sticks to each of his three sons. They broke the sticks into twos in an instant. And again, they started to quarrel among themselves because they couldn't agree on who came first. The old man said, "Dear sons, the game is not over. Now I will give another bundle of sticks to each of you. You have to break the sticks as a bundle, not as single sticks." The sons agreed and tried to break the bundle of sticks. Though they tried their best they could not break the bundle. They failed(失败) to finish the task.

The three sons reported their failure to their father. The old man said to them "Dear sons, see! You could easily break the single sticks into two, but you were not able to break the bundle! So, if you stay together, nobody can do any harm to you. If you quarrel every time with each other, anyone can easily make you fail.

The three sons understood the importance of being together and told their father that they would all stay together.

22. Did the three sons get well with each other?
 23. What did the villagers do to the three sons?
 24. What did the old man use to give his sons a lesson?
 25. Why did the three sons quarrel after they broke the sticks into twos?
 26. What can you learn from the story?
