Have you ever heard the saying "Don rest on your laurels"? "Laurels" means the achievements you have already got. The saying suggests that you shouldn't be too satisfied with your achievements that you'll no longer try to improve.

As to this saying, Mike Perham has set a good example to us. Mike Perham was born in 1992 in England. Mike started sailing (航行) at the age of 7. When he was 14 years old, he sailed across the Atlantic Ocean. He became the youngest person to sail across the Atlantic Ocean. You might think the achievements are good enough, but Mike doesn't think so. At the age of 17, he became the youngest person to sail all by himself around the world on a nine-month voyage(航海).

Mike is now 19 and he is still trying his best to break the records and push himself further. For his next dream, he plans to fly around the world alone, making him the first person of all ages to both sail and fly around the world.

Mike wants his achievements to encourage young people to realize their dreams. Since his Adventures, he has travelled widely, and gives speeches at schools and clubs in the UK, China and Australia on the topic of "Live the Dream".

C

Are You Right Handed or Left Handed?

Which hand do you use when you write? About 8% to 15% of people are left handed. They often have to use tools that are designed for right-handed people. So it is difficult for left-handers to use most tools. If you are right handed, try this experiment: Take a knife with your left hand and try cutting a potato into pieces. Don't be surprised if you feel awkward (别扭的)

However, many researchers think that left hander and right-handers are different in some aspects. Right-handers are more talkative and outgoing than left-handers. Many right-handed people understand spoken words better. For example, after they listen to directions to a supermarket, they can find it easily. Right-handers are good at organizing people, too. They are also better basketball guards. Just ask Yao Ming.

If you prefer one hand, but you are still good at writing with the other, you are mixed handed.

Research shows mixed-handers can remember everyday things better than other people.

What did you eat for lunch two weeks ago? If you're mixed handed, you can probably remember.

28. If right-handers cut up potatoes with their left hand, they will _____.

- A. get hurt B. give up cutting C. feel awkward D. change their tools

29. What is Paragraph 2 mainly about?

- A. Causes of being left handed. B. Encouragement to left-handers
C. Punishment for using the left hand D. Changes in opinions on left-handers

30. According to the passage, right-handers _____.

- A. are good organizers B. learn better visually
C. are better at single sports D. give clear directions to others

31. From the passage, we can learn that left-handers _____.

- A. may be more talkative and outgoing
B. are ordinary people like right-handers
C. might remember everyday things better
D. no longer need to use right handed tools

D

Success by Failure

I had failed again. It was the day of the big marathon. I had decided three years ago to train for the half-marathon event and take home a medal (奖牌). There I sat, in front of my TV, while I watched others cross the finishing line. I was just another in a long string (串) of failures. I had never met a single weight loss or fitness goal and I was majoring in the art of failing.

We are a family of exploration and often plan active vacations. It seemed that on every vacation I was the one who couldn't go the distance. Each time I urged (催促) my family, "Go on without me. Bring me lots of pictures and videos. I'll be fine just sitting here taking in the view." I lied. Sick of being left behind. I decided that it would never happen again. Sure I was in my 50s, but surely there was still hope for me. I always spent weeks walking to prepare for our active vacations. I had lost weight many times I just always seemed to fail to get where I needed to be

But this time I would do something different. I was going to walk a half marathon. Surely I would lose weight and get in shape if I could complete over 12 miles in four hours. Besides, this would be training. Training sounded cooler than diet and exercise. I was revved up and ready to go. I bought the proper gear(装备), checked out what type of drinks would be handed out at the marathon and prepared a lot. I had a plan!

Now two years later, there I sat, watching thousands of people of all ages succeed where I had failed. I walked out, angry with myself, sat down and had myself a pity party. I was a master at the art of pity parties, having a great deal of experience in holding them. What was my problem? Where was I going wrong? I stopped and considered each failure, one by one, I made some very interesting discoveries.

I had failed to climb to the top of that Mayan Pyramid, but I did climb it and stood on those ancient stones. I had failed to meet a single weight loss goal and yet I had lost 43 pounds. I couldn't walk 12 miles in four hours, but I could walk 12 miles.

All my failures were sounding like a success story. This time I was giving thanks. I was thankful that I had been given the spirit of failure because failure meant that I was trying, that I didn't give up. I decided that I would be crossing the finishing line next year.

32. What can you learn from the passage?

- A. The writer didn't lose any weight in the end.
- B. The writer didn't climb the Mayan Pyramid.
- C. The writer didn't take part in the big marathon.
- D. The writer didn't have vacations with his family.

33. What does the underlined sentence "I was revved up" probably mean?

- A. I got excited.
- B. I felt moved.
- C. I was pushed.
- D. I was chosen.

34. Which words can best describe the writer in the passage?

- A. Clever and friendly.
- B. Interesting and proud.
- C. Humorous and hopeful
- D. Kind and strong-willed.

35. The writer probably agrees that_____.

- A. one should never give up half way
- B. setting a goal is the key to success
- C. one can learn by making and correcting mistakes
- D. trying but failing to reach the goal is still meaningful

四、阅读短文,根据短文内容回答问题。(共 15 分,每小题 3 分)

We should learn to understand our mother well. Here are the best ways towards a better relationship with her. They are not necessarily surprising, but they have worked for many people. Try them.

• Remember your mother's age

As children, we often forget our mother's age. Knowing our mother's age, not just in numbers of years but in terms of her psychological (心理的) and physical state, often helps us to understand her better.

• Listen to your mother

I have found that sometimes the things my mother told me long ago are pretty useful. If you respect her point of view, it will help your mother feel close to you.

• Ask your mother about your childhood(童年的) history

If you are lucky enough to have a living family, think of your life as a jigsaw puzzle(拼图游戏)and ask as many questions as you can to put the picture together. Understanding your childhood history can help you know more clearly who you are, as part of a family which you share with your mother .

Trying to understand our mother is the topic of how we understand ourselves. We should follow the way of her life. When we are able to accept our mother—with all her failings, we can understand her better and it can also help us to know about our shortcomings. Remember that understanding our mother is really about understanding ourselves.

36. Should we learn to understand our mother well?

37. What do children often forget about their mother?

38. How do we make our mother feel close to us?

39. Why do we ask our mother about our childhood history?

40. What does the writer want to tell us?
