题目二:

1. My role model is my classmate Jack. He is very kind and helpful.

At school, he studies so hard that he often gets good grades in exams. However, I am not good at studying, so he not only helps me with my homework about every subject but also tells me to work hard in order that I can catch up with others. With his help, I have made great progress in my study and I thank him very much.

I think I'm lucky to have such a good classmate. From now on, I'll try my best to study better and better. And I hope I'll learn from Jack to help others in trouble.

2. My role model is my friend Liu Xuan. She is good at English and she studies very hard. She is also very kind and helpful.

Once, our group had some difficulties in preparing the English play. Liu Xuan was not our group member but she helped us to practice. She gave us many useful suggestions. At last, our group won. We thanked her but she said we won because of the teamwork.

I learn I should not only try my best to do things well but also help others when they need. I want to follow her example.

3. Everyone has a role model. My role model is my mother. I have learned a lot from her.

My mother is kind and helpful. She always reaches out her warm hands to the people who need help. Once, our neighbour, an old granny was ill. Her children were not at home. Then my mother sent her to the hospital with her car. She is also kind to my grandparents. She cooks delicious food for them and takes good care of them when they are ill. My mother is also hard-working at work. She goes to work early and comes back late and she can co-operate with her workmates well. She has won the heart of them.

My mother sets a good example for me. What she has done inspires me and I decide to be a person like her.
