题目②

Being an active participant is important in our life. Last year, I offered to design our class bulletin board. After gathering some ideas from my classmates, I came up with a design that would be both eye-catching and informative. Then, I asked my classmates for help to find the necessary materials and worked hard to bring the design to life. At last, I actively collected feedback from my classmates to make sure the bulletin board met everyone's expectation.

I have gained a great sense of achievement from this experience. By taking an active part, not only did I make our classroom more beautiful, but also strengthened the bond with my classmates. This achievement has inspired me to help the class, the family, and the community in a meaningful way.

Good morning, birding club members. You must be very excited about your first birding trip with schoolmates. We are going to the wildlife park next Friday. Here's something you need to know.

We'll leave for the park very early at 5:30 in the morning, so don't be late. Before you go, spend some time studying the birds you hope to see. Then you can recognize them when they appear during the trip. If possible, study the map of the park I gave you last week. It will help you find the best place to watch birds. Please remember to wear quick-drying outdoor clothing.

By the way, Mr. Green will be your guide. He is very nice and knowledgeable. Enjoy your first birding trip!
