Shyness can be an unhappy feeling. But the good news is, you're not alone. Scientists say that more than 40 percent of teenagers and adults consider (认为) themselves shy. Shyness is feeling a little nervous or as if you want to hide when you're around other people or in a new situation.

▲ Scientists say such things as genetics(遗传基因),life experiences, and environment can influence (影响) whether a person is shy. For example, in some families, everybody seems to be shy.

What happens if you are shy? Well, being shy may cause you to avoid or miss opportunities you would enjoy.

How do people overcome(克服)shyness? This is what Gilbert tells us. "When I started off trying to get over being shy, I decided to do little steps at a time, including practicing smiling and saying hi to people. And it works for me."

But shyness is not the kind of thing that most people can get over overnight. Overcoming shyness takes time and needs practice.

Here are some tips given by scientists.

Think of what to talk before you leave home. Prepare things to talk about before you're in a social situation (情况) . For example, if you know your classmates are interested in an upcoming(即将来临的)event, learn about it so you can join in the conversations.

Let people know you're shy. If you're shy, just show it. Instead of letting people guess, tell them the truth. Explain that you are shy and feel nervous but enjoy talking to people.

Make things easy for the other person. Remember, you're not the only shy person around. Do what you think might help others feel good, for example, say hello or smile.

Pick one social skill to practice at a time. Start simply. For example, smile or be the first person to say hi. Choose skills you feel comfortable enough with to practice for a day, a week, a month, or even a year.

50. Which of the following is the best for "▲" in Paragraph 2 ?

- A. What is shyness?
B. What makes people shy?
C. Can shyness be good for us?
D. Can we overcome shyness?

51. The example of Gilbert in Paragraph 4 is to _____.

- A. show how people overcome shyness
B. introduce a shy girl called Gilbert
C. tell the right time to practice smiling
D. explain the steps of overcoming shyness

52. What does the underlined word "overnight" in Paragraph 5 most probably mean?

- A. Correctly B. Slowly C. Suddenly D. Finally

53. Which of the following is the right way to overcome shyness?

- A. Don't let others know that you are shy.
 B. Wait for others to say hello to you first.
 C. Choose several skills to practice at a time.
 D. Get ready before you join in a social situation.

Jing Fengying, 57, and her husband are parents to four youngsters at a home for orphans (孤儿) and abandoned (被遗弃的) children in Hohhot, capital of the Inner Mongolia autonomous region (内蒙古自治区).

“I have worked here for 10 years,” Jing said.

In January 2014, when President Xi Jinping visited the “homes”, he spoke highly of the “families” for the children.

Jing has been a mother to more than 20 children in total. “Almost 98 percent of the children in this organization are either physically or mentally challenged. So we have to care for them with a lot of attention and patience,” she said.

Besides raising the children, the organization takes care of their education and medical treatment. It also helps its children find places to work when they are over 18 years old.

The government has worked hard to improve the livelihood (民生) of its people in recent years. Following Xi’s instructions to not rest until the people’s problems are solved, the local government has made a lot of effort on poverty alleviation (扶贫) and medical services. Since 2013, the local government has lifted 1.41 million people out of poverty. And the region promising to help another 153,000 poor people to shake off poverty by 2020.

54. Where’re the “homes”?
 55. Who visited these “homes” in 2014?
 56. Why does the organization care for the children with a lot of attention and patience?
 57. What do you think of the organization? Why? (Please give two reasons)

作文范文:

My favourite sport is basketball. I started playing basketball at the age of 12. I often play it with my friends twice a week. Playing basketball is more dangerous than many other sports. Sometimes I hurt my legs or arms. But it is very exciting. I think nothing is more enjoyable than playing basketball. Playing basketball can make me healthy. The more I play basketball, the stronger I am.
