Teachers talk about the kindest thing a student ever did for them:
 Sophia	I was having a really bad day and saw a large group of students standing around another group. Expecting the worst I went over only to find that they were all trying to put a basket of flowers they got for me.
 Steve	One student I worked particularly closely with wrote a goodbye card to me. He said in the card, "You make me proud of myself!" I still take it out and read it again and again when I'm feeling down.
 Curry	On the first day of the new school year, I received a letter from my worst behaved student. In the letter he explained how thankful he was for having me as a teacher because, "We may have had our ups and downs, but you never gave up on me." The letter was the best gift I ever received.
 Kate	My dad had been a teacher for over 30 years. All his students loved him. I still remember on a birthday of him the students honored him by letting go more than 100 balloons after school. Even to this day his former students said to me regularly he was a great man and a great teacher.

Long ago, there was a poor farmer called Fred. Fred and his wife, Doris, lived happily together in their tiny old hut. One winter night, the Luck Fairy came and wanted to give a wish to them.

Fred and Doris smiled at each other. Then Fred said, "Thank you, Luck Fairy. We're well and happy.”

“Although we are old, we still work in the field every day,” said Doris.

“You work very hard, but you make very little money. Would you like some gold coins?” asked the Luck Fairy.

“Oh, no, my dear Luck Fairy. Although we’re poor, we still have enough food to eat,” replied Fred.

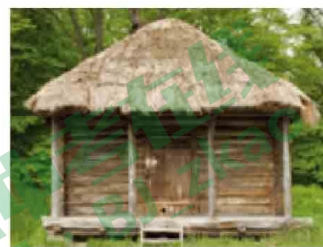

“You can use the gold coins to buy some new clothes. The winter here is very cold,” said the Luck Fairy.

“Although we haven’t got many clothes, we’ve got enough,” said Doris.

“Well, what about a nice, new house?” asked the Luck Fairy.

“Thank you. I like my tiny, old hut very much. I’ve lived here since I was born. I don’t want a new house,” said Fred.

“You’re very different from other people. I like you very much,” said the Luck Fairy.” I wish you happiness and health forever (永远).” Then the Luck Fairy disappeared.

C

When you close your eyes and need to rest, sleep is just the very best. Sleep helps your body grow and stay healthy. However, in the animal world, it seems that some animals don’t need much sleep.

Giraffes usually sleep, although not for a long time. In places like zoos giraffes have been known to sleep for between four and five hours, mostly at night. During sleep, the animal may lie down or stay standing. Standing sleep is more common among older giraffes. In the wild, however, the animals almost never sleep for longer than five minutes at a time. More often, they sleep fully standing and their eyes are half-open so they can see an enemy getting close.

Deer (鹿) do not sleep much during the day or the night. In fact, the night is a dangerous time for the animal to sleep because some of their enemies look for food at night. However, deer try their best to sleep for three to four hours. Even when sleeping, they have to be careful so that they do not become food for their enemies.

The Alpine Swift (雨燕) is a bird that lives in places from southern Europe all the way to the Himalayas. These birds spend a lot of their time flying to the warmer places and all the way to the south of Africa. The birds may spend up to 200 days flying during their journey. These birds sleep while they fly. The Alpine Swifts are able to sleep with one side of their brain while the other side pays much attention to flying and finding enemies.

Dolphins (海豚) usually go to sleep with only one side of their brain so that they use the other side of their brain for swimming and to watch out for enemies. Some dolphins do not go to sleep in the first month of their lives. Instead, they rest by pushing their bodies against their mothers so that they do not drown (淹死). Mothers need to make sure that they do not go to sleep. That is why mother dolphins are able to go for at least a month without sleeping.

28. Deer stay awake most of the time to _____.
- A. smell danger    B. look for food    C. feed their young    D. move to another place
29. What is special about the Alpine Swift?
- A. It sleeps during the day.    B. It can stay awake for 200 days.
C. It can sleep while it flies.    D. It needs no sleep in warm places.
30. What do dolphins and the Alpine swifts have in common?
- A. Babies don't sleep at all.    B. Mothers sleep less than fathers.
C. Babies rest with their mothers.    D. They sleep with half of their brain.

Your college years, the one time in your life can you truly enjoy the art of staying up late. Others may be fooled into thinking that your sleepless nights are the result of hard study, but we know the real reason why you're burning the midnight oil.

Does this sound familiar (熟悉)? Every evening, after returning to your dorm (宿舍), you sit checking your smartphone for a few minutes, which quickly turns into a few hours. When you do finally get round to looking at your homework, you can only manage to write a few words before you become bored.

To stop from falling asleep, you decide to play a video game – just a few rounds, to put new energy in your mind so you can start working again. But the next time you check the clock, it's already the few hours of the morning.

That's when you realize there's no time left to procrastinate. So you take a hold of your pen and get to work, on the one hand regretting the lack (缺乏) of time you have to complete your task, while also accepting praises from your roommates for studying so hard.

You tell yourself you stay up late because you are a hard worker. In fact you're fooling yourself.

In the dark of night, only a few light spots (光点) can be seen in your almost-empty office. Now and then, the silence is broken by the keyboard taps (敲击声). Although you work overtime every day, you still haven't managed to reach the goals you set for yourself.

But why should this be? You're careful not to get distracted (分神) by your phone, and seldom sit around daydreaming. Still, you've hardly anything to show for all the extra (额外的) time you spend in the office. So you hold your head in your hands and cry out: where did the time go?

You might feel busy every day, but in truth you're finishing little.

All your time is spent imagining a great future, without ever actually doing what's needed to make that dream a reality.

In your mind, you work harder than anyone else, but your results show this to be a lie.

So please, have a rethink. Let's stop it with the lying. Are you really trying hard, or are you hardly trying?

31. Which of the following would be the best title?

- A. Are you really trying hard?                      B. Are you hardly trying?
C. Where did the time go?                          D. Are you really still at work?

32. The word "procrastinate" in Paragraph 5 probably means "_____".

- A. think again                      B. put off                      C. study hard                      D. stay up

33. What can we learn from the passage?

- A. We should work harder than others.
B. We should stay up late to work better.
C. We should put our whole heart into work.
D. We should spend time imagining a great future.

第二部分

本部分共 6 题，共 20 分。根据题目要求，完成相应任务。

四、阅读表达（每题 2 分，共 10 分）

阅读短文，根据短文内容回答问题。

On winter nights, the wind usually blows strongly. Most of us stay inside our warm homes. Few of us think about the homeless. These people have no choice but to sleep on the streets. Some of them are so poor that they have no money to buy food.

A young man in Birmingham, England, made a decision to do something about this. Every night, he puts on a Spider-Man suit (套装) and gives food to the homeless he meets. He makes sure that these people won't go hungry. The man refuses to make his name public.

The local people call him "the Birmingham Spider-Man". The young man hopes his action will show others that everybody deserves (应得) a helping hand.

The 25-year-old man started his night activities in 2015. Every night at 9, he buys some sandwiches. Then, he finds a quiet place and puts on his suit. After that, the "Spider-Man" starts handing his food out to people in need.

The man said, "I wear the Spider-Man suit in order to get attention." Without the suit, few people took a second look at him when he was handing out food. When people see the "Spider Man", however, they come over and ask what he is doing.

"The Birmingham Spider Man" has already got lots of attention. Many people have offered to give away money to him. But the young man never accepts the money. Instead, he encourages people to go out and help people in need on their own. He said, "If more people offer a helping hand, the cold winter nights won't be so cold any longer."

34. How does the young man in Birmingham England help the homeless people?
35. When did the young man start his night activities?
36. What does the young man hope his action will show others?
37. Why does the young man wear the Spider-Man suit?
38. Why does the young man never accept the money that many people have given to him?
