Mr. Brown moved to a new city. There was a very big garden in front of his house. He planted many flowers in it. They looked really beautiful. But soon there was a problem. Children going to school nearby liked to pick the flowers. So Mr. Brown put a board in the garden, and it said "No Picking". But one day when Mr. Brown came back from work, he found that nothing had changed.

The next morning, Mr. Brown didn't go to work. He stood in the garden when a boy was coming. The boy asked, "Can I have a flower?" "Which one do you want?" asked Mr. Brown. The child pointed at a big one. Then Mr. Brown said, "This is your flower. If you leave it here, it will last for a week or two. But if you pick it now, you'll have it for only a few hours." The child thought for a moment and said, "I will leave it here and come back later to look at it"

That day more than ten children stopped picking flowers. Each agreed to leave his in the garden until it died. That spring Mr. Brown gave away his whole garden, but he never lost a flower and made a lot of friends.

I will never forget the tenth summer of my childhood with my grandfather in western Norway at the mountain farm where my mother was born. As a boy, I always thought people simply bought whatever they need. Whether Grandfather knows this, I don't know. One day he said, "Come, I have something for you."

I followed him to a workroom. "You should have a toy boat. You can sail it at Storvassdal." He said. Great, I thought, looking around for the boat. But there was none.

Grandfather pointed to a block of wood. "The boat is there," he said. Then he handed me some tools and showed me how to use them properly. "It'll be a fine boat, and you'll make it with your own hands," he said, "No one can give you what you do for yourself." The words rang in my head as I worked. After I finished the boat, it wasn't much to look at, but I was proud. Then I sailed it at Storvassdal.

We had to return to America. "You cannot bring that boat home with you," my mother said. We already had too much baggage. Feeling sad, I hid my boat under a big rock at Storvassdal.

I said good-bye to Grandfather, not knowing I would never see him again.

In 1964, I went to Storvassdal with my parents and my wife and children. To my surprise, for 34 years my treasure stayed here, waiting for my return. I felt we three were together again although my grandfather had died 22 years before.

I carved "1930" and "1964" on its side and put it back.

I returned to the lake in 1968, 1971, 1977 and 1988. Each time I had the boat and carved the year, my grandfather seemed near.

My last trip to Storvassdal was in 1991. I brought my granddaughters: Catherine, 13; Claire, 12. I hoped they would understand the importance of the little boat and its simple message. At Storvassdal, Claire said softly, "Grandpa, someday I'll come back." She added, "And I'll bring my children."

54. What did grandfather ask the writer to do?

- A. To use some tools.
- B. To sail at Storvassdal.
- C. To bring the boat home.
- D. To make the boat by himself

55. The underlined words "we three" in Paragraph 6 refer to _____

- A. Grandfather, the boat and me.

B. Mother, the boat and me.

C. Catherine, Claire and me.

D. Grandfather, Mother and me.

56. According to the passage, we can infer (推断) that _____

A. The writer's grandmother was born in western

B. Claire understood the meaning of the boat

C. The boat took me back to Norway four times

D. The writer's grandfather died in 1930

57. That's title best title of the passage?

A. The Little Boar That Sailed At Storvassdal

B. The Little Boat And My Wife

C. The Little Boat That Sailed Through Time

D. The Little Boat And My Parents

D

Entertainment (娱乐) is a developing business, its popularity continues to grow as it keeps up with technology. More people are willing to pay for entertainment with their time and money. Sometimes entertainment is an escape (逃避). It takes us away from our reality and gets us into another world — not our own.

● Why do we want to escape?

Boredom or loneliness: The boredom of daily life gets to us and we feel we need some excitement and a bit change. A TV running in the background, and maybe catching our attention every now and then, keeps us company.

Fear and avoidance: We don't want to face something we fear, or can't bring ourselves to move past the fear and do something about it. We're scared to go for what we want, so we choose to turn on the TV.

Struggle: Life sometimes feels like a battle-traffic, work, taking care of ourselves and keeping up with what's going on. At the end of the day all we want to do is forgetting about all of it and sitting mindlessly in front of TV.

Escaping has never been easier than today. We have many forms of escape. And the most favored is entertainment.

● _____

Self entertainment: You can stay at home and watch TV, or surf online all day long.

Social connection: One can line up for a new movie and connect with other people or go to a ballgame and cheer for his or her favorite team. Entertainment has become something people have in common and can talk about.

All forms of entertainment are okay if we know what we're doing. And more importantly, we have complete control over when entertainment comes to an end.

● To face our fears and reality or to escape?

If you tried escaping before and it didn't help, it's time to deal with the problems you face.

Before watching a TV show, make sure that the important thing is taken care of. Leave your favorite show to the end of the day, after you've taken care of what matters to you. This will allow you to enjoy every minute.

There is nothing wrong with entertainment, if we don't place a higher value on it than our own reality and what matters to us.

When we entertain ourselves mindfully, we won't need to escape. We turn entertainment into the reality of the moment. And when we're done, we move on -with no regret. And that can be a lot of fun.

58. Which of the following sentences might be the best to fill in the blank?

- A. Who can we connect with?
- B. What's the best form of escape?
- C. Why is entertainment in such great need?
- D. How does the entertainment business develop?

59. Which of the following can explain the underlined sentence?

- A. We can stop entertaining when we want to.
- B. It's more important to control our daily life.
- C. We need to learn about all forms of entertainment.
- D. Entertainment leads to the loss of self-control.

60. The writer may agree that _____ .

- A. an escape from life is more difficult than ever
- B. entertainment is the best way for us to enjoy life
- C. the popularity of entertainment depends on technology
- D. we can truly entertain ourselves with real matters done

Health is the most important thing in the world. Nothing is more important than health. If we take away our money, houses, cars or even our clothes, we can still survive(活下来), but if our health was taken away, it is certain that we would sure die. That is why we always try to eat in a healthy way and exercise regularly.

How can we keep healthy? Here are some suggestions for you.

First, we should eat healthily. In order to eat healthily, I usually avoid eating food high in fat, like French fries or cookies, which are junk foods. I only eat little meat. I eat a lot of vegetables and fresh fruit which are full of vitamins.

Second, doing exercise is very important. Taking exercise every day helps us build a strong body. Regular exercise is an important part of keeping me healthy.

Third, I think friends are an important part of one's health. Many studies show that people with a range of social contacts don't get sick. I always feel better when I am with friends than when I am alone. By spending time with my friends, I can keep my mind happy. Happiness is also an important part of health. It is good to stay with my friends.

These things sound easy to do, but not many people can manage them, so I think a strong will is necessary if we want to keep healthy.

66. Is health the most important thing in the world?

67. What kind of food does the writer eat a lot?

68. How can you build a strong body?

69. Why should we spend time with our friends?

70. What is the passage mainly about?
