Darrell Burton was always very careful. He listened to his teachers, he studied really hard, and he did all of his homework well. Other students sometimes made fun of him and said, "Don't study so hard. You're such a book-head." However, Darrell didn't mind. He loved to learn.

In fact, he learned about science from doing experiments on real animals. Much like scientists observe (观察) nature, Darrell did, too. He formed a hypothesis (假设) and studied it to see whether it was true. In this way, he could learn more.

One night, Darrell heard a strange noise coming from his closet. When he carefully opened his closet door, the noise stopped at once.

The next morning, he told his mother about the noise, and how he had a hypothesis that the sounds were coming from mice. “I will get you a mouse trap (捕鼠夹),” his mother said.

“I don’t want the kind of trap that kills the mice. I only want to catch them so that I can tame (驯服) them,” replied Darrell.

The trap was set, the mice were caught, and in just a short time, they were so tame that they would eat right from Darrell’s hand. He read about mice, and discovered that most mice might not even live a whole year. This made Darrell decide to take even greater care of them. Like a scientist, he studied the mice closely. He took such good care of them that they lived more than a year.

Finally, he studied biology, and his college professors said he was a great natural scientist. Later, Darrell became a zoologist. Today, he is Dr. Darrell Burton, and he works at the zoo. He is caring for all the animals, including the mice.

38. What was Darrell Burton like when he was a student?
A. Hardworking. B. Outgoing. C. Careless. D. Noisy.
39. After he caught the mice, Darrell _____.
A. killed them B. set them free C. took care of them D. sent them to the zoo
40. What can we learn from the story?
A. Mice are good pets for teenagers. B. Animals can bring us a lot of fun.
C. Darrell was born to be a scientist. D. We should study animals like a scientist.

Teenage Online Shopping Trends

Teenagers spend a lot of money. The 35.6 million teens in the United States are great shoppers and their shopping decisions are always changing, so marketing to them is a challenge. Luckily, shopping researchers love to do research on this age group and have got many results.

Piper Jaffray, a research company, has published the report of its latest survey, “Taking Stock with Teens.” The report is based on a survey of 5,500 teens — 75% from common families and 25% from rich families. It says that 70% of teens prefer to shop at their favorite stores online. All teens are shopping more on the Internet and local outlet stores and less at specialty stores. The survey also finds that parents give less money to teens to pay for the goods (商品) they would like to buy, both from common and rich families. As a result, teens shop less at expensive specialty stores. Parents give them less pocket money, but most teenagers report that their parents still pay for more than half of their spending.

The survey also shows that clothing remains the most popular with teens — 21% of all teens’ spending. Besides clothing, electronics and footwear are the most popular online shopping goods. Boys shop more for these two kinds of goods than girls. Overall, teenagers spend much more money on clothing.

Teens love brands (品牌), but they don’t stick to one brand. Their friends’ opinions really matter. Peer support is very important, especially to girls. According to the report, friends have the biggest influence (影响) on teens’ buying decisions and about 50% of both boys and girls say social media influences them, too.

What’s more, shopping is a very important social activity for teenage girls. They are wise shoppers with more than 60% waiting for goods to go on sale before buying them. 77% say they are more likely to buy a low-price article than one at full price.

41. The underlined word “challenge” in Paragraph 1 probably means _____.
- A. a big surprise B. a difficult thing C. a special test D. a strange idea
42. What can we learn from the latest survey by Piper Jaffray?
- A. Parents don't let teens shop at specialty stores.
B. 75% of teens prefer to shop at local outlet stores.
C. Parents pay less money for what teens want to buy.
D. Teenage girls spend more money on footwear than boys.
43. Paragraph 4 mainly tells us _____.
- A. how teens buy their favorite goods online
B. where teens can get cheaper and better goods
C. why teens need to ask for advice when shopping
D. what influences teens when they decide what to buy

Do you know those people in class who always joke (开玩笑) about everything no matter how serious it is? Most students will simply let the jokes go on with their all-too-happy laughter. You may not notice them, but there will be some people who aren't laughing. It isn't because they don't understand the joke. Far from it. They do understand the joke, but the point is that they understand it so well, much more than the joke itself.

What do you do when a classmate says something like “this activity is so fun that I want to name it Mr. Boring”? Most would think that the person is joking and almost no one would bat an eye. In fact, some would add on to the joke or agree with the opinion. It is understandable that some people may joke about these kinds of things to have a good laugh, but there is a point in which it is too much. This kind of humor is just sad and even hurtful, which is disliked by people who really understand it.

Someone might say, “You're overly sensitive (敏感). Can't you just take a joke?” Imagine you are bullied and feel hurt inside. You are thinking about telling someone after keeping it a secret for a long time. Then, someone makes a joke about bullying. You look around. No one seems to care. What would you do? Would you still tell them? Or, would it seem like just a joke to them? People who make something serious a joke are the ones at fault. Those class jokers may think it's funny now, but the moment something serious happens, they fall in line with everyone else, believing they have no idea how to help. What's worse, they think that they are not part of the problem.

The truth is that these jokes themselves are the problem. Do people truly believe that making a joke out of a serious thing will solve anything? It never will, and the sad part is that people don't realize the problem even when someone is badly affected (被影响) by it. There is a clear way to solve the problem. Stop making serious things out to be just a joke.

44. According to Paragraph 1 and 2, some people aren't laughing because _____.
- A. they don't like making jokes B. they feel they can tell much better jokes
C. they can hardly understand the joke D. they think it's not good to make such a joke
45. From the underlined sentence in Paragraph 2, we know most students _____.
- A. wouldn't care about the joke B. think the activity is special
C. don't want the joke to go on D. take part in other activities

46. In Paragraph 3, the writer uses the example to show _____.

- A. people should never tell their secrets to others
- B. jokes about serious things are the problem themselves
- C. class jokers come to help when something serious happens
- D. people should tell others their true feelings when they are sad

47. Which of the following would be the best title for the passage?

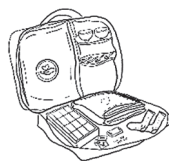

- A. Jokes Are Just Jokes
- B. Jokes: Don't Go Too Far
- C. Jokes Are Always Funny
- D. Jokes: Don't Worry Too Much

Sophie, a 13-year-old girl, hoped to brighten the lives of patients (病人). She started her “Sophie’s Care Bags” after seeing her grandfather in the hospital.

“She saw him suffering (忍受) a lot of pain, getting tired and lying on the bed,” Sophie’s mom explained. “Every day her grandpa needed to have treatment for nearly two hours. Sophie is such a kind girl that she wanted to do something to help him and other patients.”

care bag

Sophie studied care bag ideas from the Internet. And her parents helped to bring her idea to life. They went shopping for comforting items, like blankets, pillows, cozy socks, bowls and candies. Later, Sophie also put playing cards and chess sets into the bags.

“As words spread, we received a lot of donations (捐赠) from neighbors, friends and family. So Sophie was able to put a little bit more in there and had more money to do it again,” her mom said.

Sophie made ten care bags for her first set and the first bag went to her beloved grandpa.

“Her grandpa felt proud of the work she was doing,” recalled Sophie’s mom.

Sophie’s Care Bags serves as an example of what we can do to help others. She is going to carry on what she has started, “We just want to keep it going and make a difference in people’s lives.”

48. When did Sophie start her “Sophie’s Care Bags”?

49. Who helped to bring Sophie’s idea to life?
